LI - To put a story into chronological order

Watch the film La Luna again.

Do you remember what chronological order is?

Chronological order is putting something into time order, or the order in which something happened.

Look at the screenshots of the film below. They are in the wrong order. Move them around to create a storyboard of the film.

Then, if you can, write a short sentence underneath each image to describe what is happening in the picture.

1. The boat softly and swiftly drifted through the sea.

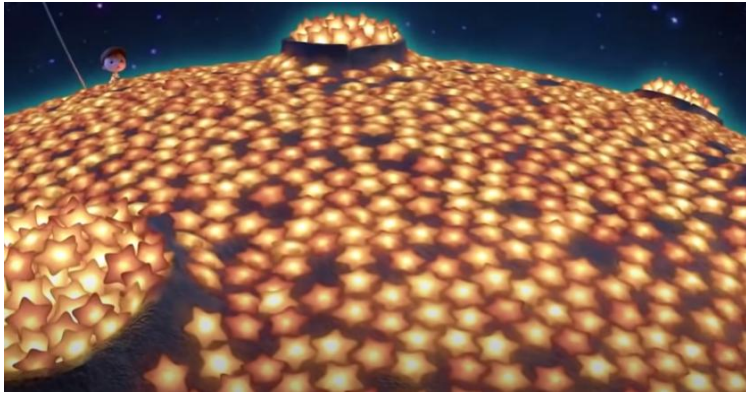

2.The boys grandad gave him a sailing hat which was the same as his and the boys dad.

3.The moon rose into the blue lit night sky.

4.The boy's dad put up a very gargantuan ladder and the boy scrambled up the enormous thing all the way to the top. When the boy got to the top he saw thousands and millions of stars. He threw the anchor into a crater which was full to the brim of stars.

5.The boy stared at the miniature stars which were glowing with glee.

6.All of a sudden, an earthquake started and out out of nowhere the biggest star ever crashed to the moon.

7.The boy raked is raking the stars up into a crescent moon shape.

8. The boy and his grandad and his dad all went home and lived happily ever after.
